They were arranged in a semi-circle and ended in two silvery Christmas trees.

The debutante, who is one of the most striking looking of this season's buds, wore a severely simple costume of white silk. Silver cloth is used in simple lines, with a hooped skirt and a snugly-fitting sleeveless bodice, with an occasional silver rose fastened to the skirt and bodice. The severity of the costume was relieved by draperies of silver lace and tiny French flowers. With the frock she carried a shower bouquet of pink roses presented by her aunt, Mrs. Alice Frye Briggs.

Mrs. White wore blue chiffon with iridescent beads. The gown was made on simple lines with a short train of chiffon. She carried orchids and violets.
